SUV TO REPEAT MEMORIAL DAY RITUAL OF GAR

A ritual as old as the Grand Army of the Republic will be repeated Sunday afternoon at 2 o'clock at the SUV rooms on East Middle street, when once again Grand Army memorial services will be held.

The Rev. Edward K. Stipe, supply pastor of the local Methodist church and a teacher at Gettysburg college, will deliver the address, on "Memorial Memories," in connection with services begun years ago by Corporal Skelly post No. 9—the GAR post in Gettysburg which disbanded when its last members, veterans of the Civil War, became too feeble and few to carry on. Held under auspices of the Gettysburg Camp No. 112, Sons of Union veterans, the program will include an invocation and benediction by the Rev. Willis R. Doyle, senior vice commander of the SUV.

Only 39 Of GAR Living

SUV Commander Dr. Joseph H. Riley will take the part of the GAR commander for the ritual exercises, T. J. Winebrenner, chaplain of the SUV will act as chaplain and G. Henry Roth will take the part of the adjutant.

A roll of drums will be provided by Lawrence M. Sheeds, of the American Legion, as the post commander calls for the records of the 28 Civil War veterans who died during the past year. Only 39 Union soldiers still live in the United States. Adams county's last Union veteran, George W. Krug, died in 1947.

Miss Alice Snyder will play the accompaniment as the audience sings "My Country 'Tis of Thee," "Faith of Our Fathers" and "Our Native Land" during the ceremony.

The public is invited to the service, Commander Riley announced.

ENTERTAINER DIES SUDDENLY

Funeral services are being arranged for Earl James Groff, Sr., 47, Frederick, professional entertainer, who died in Winchester, Md., Wednesday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock. The Frederick county medical examiner gave the cause of death as a heart attack.

Rose, a piano and solovox player, was well-known in this area as a "folksy" entertainer providing popular music for any occasion. He had had several programs on the WPMF radio station and was on his way to the Frederick broadcasting studio to pick up his mail, when stricken.

Not a staff musician of the station, he had been working in and out of Frederick for more than a year. Officials said, Sgt. Ben Phebus conducted the preliminary investigation into the sudden death.

The deceased was a son of the late John and Margaret Small Groff and a member of the Catholic church.

Surviving him are his wife, Mrs. Minerva Strawbaugh Groff, Hanover, and the following children: Earl J. Groff, Jr., Mrs. Dorothy Strawbaugh, Richard J. Groff, Frederick J. Groff, Burrell R. Groff, all of Hanover; also the following sisters and brothers: Mrs. Felix Klumk, Mrs. Leon Staub, both of McSherrystown; Francis Groff and Preston Groff, both of Hanover.

BIGLERVILLE TO HOLD TOWN MEETING JUNE 14

Biglerville residents will meet Wednesday evening, June 14, at 8 o'clock to take a good look at their community, praise its good points and suggest what can be done to take care of any shortcomings that might be brought up in the course of the discussion.

Under sponsorship of the Biglerville Businessmen's club, all residents of the town and surrounding countryside are invited to attend a program to be held at the grade school auditorium in the form of a flag day celebration and "old-time town meeting."

The Ira E. Lady post of the American Legion is being invited to provide for the flag day observance portion of the meeting.

Plan Panel Discussion

For the "town meeting" section of the session, the sponsors are arranging for a panel discussion which will outline the problems and the prides of the community as they see them. Then the floor will be open to anyone to state his opinions.

Hoping for a large attendance and spirited discussion, the businessmen's group plans to make the town meeting an annual affair at which the residents of the Biglerville community, not only those who live in the town, but those who look upon it as their center, will say what they think of the community. A point out what may be needed to make it a better town, and tell what they like about the section.

From the meeting June 14 and succeeding annual sessions, the businessmen hope to gain an insight that will lead to making the borough a better community.

Many Topics Listed

The moderator for the panel discussion and the members of the panel will be announced at a later date, sponsors said. They promised that the panel members would be representative of all types of people and endeavors as well as those who have lived in the Biglerville area all of their lives and those who have moved into the community.

Knowing that some people are reluctant to speak out in public meeting, the sponsors are planning to place a box in a conspicuous place in the community one week before the June 14 session.

Those who feel they could not get up and speak at the town meeting are asked to place their suggestions, ideas and recommendations in the box, to be discussed at the session.

Topics will range through health, recreation, town organizations, history of Biglerville, observance of special days, appearance of the town, traffic regulations and friendliness of the community. Those are topics suggested by the committee so far, with the hope that additional ones will be suggested at the town meeting.

Yankee Troops Are Ready For March Of Berlin's Red Youths

Berlin, May 27 (AP) — American troops were placed in a "state of readiness" today as 400,000 young Germans massed here for giant Communist youth rallies.

Though no violence had developed so far and Red leaders jeered at the western allies for their previously expressed fears that an attack on west Berlin might develop, the Americans, British and French took no chances.

U. S. troops were restricted to their barracks, on the alert for any call, an official announcement said. British forces went on a full alert at dawn yesterday, followed soon after by the French garrison.

Prepare Huge Park

East Berlin's Communist leaders meanwhile turned their sector into a giant amusement park for the youth assembling for Sunday's giant Whitman demonstration.

With a "long live Stalin" cheer, the Communists began a 12-hour program of sports festivals and pro-Soviet speeches to dazzle the "free German youth" (FDJ). Berlin—hot spot of the cold war—

WILL DECORATE GRAVES OF VETS OF WORLD WARS

Boy Scouts, Girl Scouts, Y-teens and 4-H club members participating in the Memorial Day parade here Tuesday are asked to carry flowers to be strewn on the graves of World Wars I and II veterans at the National cemetery, the committee said today.

School children as usual will place flowers on the graves of the Civil War veterans, and following a custom begun two years ago, the other organizations at the same time will strew flowers on the newer graves.

The local National Park office, in connection with Tuesday's program, asked drivers of cars to keep their vehicles on the highway and off the grass along the sides of the avenues. The long wet period has made the ground very soft, and as a result a car getting off the highway would cause much damage. Dr. J. Walter Coleman, park superintendent, noted. Parking on Memorial Day will be permitted along Hancock avenue, Doctor Coleman said. He added that parking in the field in front of the gates at Hancock avenue, which was permitted in previous years, will not be permitted this year because of the wetness of the ground.

Speakers To Tour Field

Trips over the battlefield are scheduled for the speakers on Tuesday morning Senator and Mrs. John W. Bricker are to arrive here Monday night. Maj. Gen. and Mrs. Charles I. Carpenter are to arrive Tuesday morning. Doctor Coleman and Dr. Frederick Tilberg, historian of the park, are scheduled to conduct the speakers and their wives on a tour of the field starting at 10 o'clock Tuesday morning.

Senator Edward Martin is planning to use his trip here as an opportunity to study at first hand damage to the Peace Light Memorial.

Five Flee Reds

Five FDJ members have fled to the western allied sectors for asylum. Six conscripts of the eastern people's police, which western officials claim is a disguised army, also have won refuge in west Berlin. But along the mid-city boundary between the Soviet and allied sectors both east and west police enforced a strict ban on blue-shirted FDJ youngsters wandering into the west.

A British armored detachment began its second day of duty within gunshot of Potsdamer Platz, traditionally the most explosive point on the boundary. Allied garrisons totalling 8,000 men were on the alert although the 13,000 western police have had no trouble yet.

Leaf Spot Infection Found In Orchards

County Agent M. T. Hartman reported leaf spot infection was found this week in county orchards in a sour cherry spray letter sent out today.

Two formulae are suggested for the cover spray. The first is two pounds of Crag 341B plus one pound of fresh spray lime per 100 gallons and the other is the use of two pounds of Ferbam per 100 gallons of spray.

3 OPINIONS HANDED DOWN THIS MORNING

The Adams county court handed down three opinions this morning. In the case of John W. Eyer, Gettysburg R. 1, vs. Leo and Beulah Kuhn, Gettysburg, the court found that Tax Collector J. Herbert Weikert has a right to collect taxes from the estate despite the fact that the tax collector failed to give notice of the taxes to the sheriff prior to the sale. The court held that, since the notice was given prior to distribution of the estate, unpaid taxes of $87.52 and the costs be deducted from the amount of the estate.

In the bill in equity brought by H. Jacob and Sons, Inc., New York, vs. William Re. Hanover, Irving Pearlstein, Sol Lantz and Cannon Shoe company, the court found in favor of H. Jacob and Sons. The case involved the purchase of the former Cannon Shoe company plant in McSherrystown. H. Jacob and Sons had been negotiating to purchase the plant when the plant was sold to Re. Pearlstein and Lantz. The court held that Re, as vice president and Hanover plant superintendent under H. Jacob and Sons, was in a trust relationship with the New York firm and could not acquire interest in a business opportunity in which the company was interested. The court also held that Lantz and Pearlstein knew of Re's relationship and there-fore.

CARL A. BAUM NAMED HEAD OF LOCAL HOSPITAL

Carl A. Baum was elected president of the Annie M. Warner hospital at the annual reorganization meeting of the directors Friday evening. Mr. Baum succeeded to the presidency last fall following the resignation of C. A. Bixler, New Oxford. He had been vice president of the board for several years.

John A. Hauser, Biglerville, and Richard C. Livingston, New Oxford, were elected first and second vice presidents respectively. Henry M. Scharf was re-elected secretary and Philip M. Jones was advanced from assistant treasurer to treasurer, succeeding Father Mark E. Stock in that post.

The officers were elected following a meeting of the directors whose terms did not expire this year. These directors, meeting as members of the hospital corporation, re-elected the following to three-year terms as directors:

Philip M. Jones, H. Harold Miller, Father Mark E. Stock and Carl A. Baum, of Gettysburg; C. A. Willis, Fairfield; Guy Stock, Bendersville; Edgar C. McDannell, Arendtsville, and George Willhide, Emmitsburg.

Need More Facilities

The most important item of business to come before the directors was an appeal from the hospital medical staff that the board undertake an early study of the possibilities of enlarging the facilities of the hospital to provide for the rapidly growing X-ray, pediatric and dispensary departments.

The appeal was seconded by the executive committee of the medical staff who asked that the board "give serious consideration to the present crowded and inadequate space in which the X-ray, pediatric and dispensary departments function and that any approach to alleviate this condition be studied."

Speaking in behalf of the recommendation, Dr. Roy W. Gifford, president of the medical staff, outlined the extent to which these departments have outgrown their quarters and described in detail the inadequacies from the viewpoint of the staff and particularly the patients of the hospital.

Operating Handicap

The X-ray department, he explained, lacks dressing and toilet facilities and has about exhausted all available space for its valuable records. Furthermore, he pointed out, the deep therapy equipment is removed from the diagnostic and intermediary equipment, the former being in the basement of the new building and the latter on the first floor of the old building. This, he said, is becoming more and more of an operating handicap and an inconvenience to patients.

Dr. Gifford noted also there is no room available for use as a fracture room and that the pediatrics facilities have long been far outgrown.

The magnitude of the problem was emphasized in the discussion among the directors, following Dr. Gifford's explanation, when it was clearly indicated that the only solution is new building.

To Name Committee

President Baum informed the board he would appoint a special committee to study the problem which would be announced with his regular committee appointments for the year.

NEW CRACKDOWN ON SOVIET BLOC COUNTRIES SEEN

Washington, May 27 (AP) — The United States was reported set today for a new crackdown on one of the Soviet bloc countries—this time Czechoslovakia.

Officials indicated the Czech consulate in New York might be closed as one possible result of a demand by Prague for a second reduction in the American diplomatic staff in Czechoslovakia.

The consulate general is the last establishment Communist Czechoslovakia has in this country aside from the embassy in Washington. Consulates at Pittsburgh and Cleveland were shut down this month after an enforced two-thirds cut in the number of American official representatives in Czechoslovakia.

May Close Consulate
The latest exchange presumably would mean the closing of the American consulate at Bratislava, leaving only the embassy at Prague, manned by a skeleton staff.

Authorities ruled out the likelihood of an order restricting movements of Czech officials in this country to 35 mile radius around Washington, such as was ordered yesterday for the Romanian staff of seven persons here. The Czechs, unlike the Romanians, thus far have not hampered the movements of Americans in their country.

The sole certainty was that the State Department was set to go a step further with the tough tit-for-tat policy toward the Soviet satellites, which has been followed in recent months.

Czechoslovakia, charging that Americans have been involved in espionage against the Communist regime, last month ordered the Prague and Bratislava staffs cut from a total of 76 to 26.

The American response on May 13 was to order a proportionate reduction by the Czechs in this country. The closing of the Cleveland and Pittsburgh consulates followed.

NORTH CAROLINA PRIMARY TODAY

Raleigh, N. C., May 27 (AP)—Senator Frank P. Graham, good friend of President Truman and one of his strongest southern supporters, put his political fate in the hands of North Carolina voters today.

Seeking the Democratic nomination for the rest of the term he fills by appointment, the former president of the University of North Carolina was opposed by Willis Smith, Raleigh corporation lawyer, and former Senator Robert R. Reynolds. The term expires in 1954.

Smith, former president of the American Bar association and a self-declared middle-of-the-roader, criticized part of the Truman policies.

The bitter fight, one of the most hectic primary campaigns in North Carolina history, has been largely between Graham and Smith. Reynolds, who won two terms in the Senate with flamboyant, colorful campaigns, reversed himself and went about quietly seeking votes.

Most observers agreed the real battle was between Graham and Smith, with the possibility neither will receive a majority and a runoff will be necessary June 24. Nomination is equal to election in this state.

This morning, at a special "Porky Pig" birthday movie at the Majestic theater, 35 more watches were presented to this number of children who attended the showing.

GET NEW DATA IN SOUTH AMBOY INVESTIGATION

New York, May 27 (AP)—The Coast Guard investigation into the mysterious blast that killed 33 persons last week in South Amboy, N. J., will move to the scene of the explosion itself tomorrow.

Authorities there already investigating for Middlesex county, yesterday claimed "vital observations and discoveries" but did not reveal their nature.

County Prosecutor Matthew F. Melko and Detective Capt. Walter L. Simpson of his staff said facts and physical evidence were turned up with the help of Navy and Coast Guard divers and officials.

The Coast Guard Investigating board, headed by Rear Admiral E. H. Smith and including four other guard officers, has been taking verbal testimony in Manhattan since last Saturday—the day after the blast.

The inquiry continues here today before moving to New Jersey.

Continue Rebuilding

At the blast scene itself, the work of rebuilding and decontaminating the area continued.

A soldier, working to remove scattered and buried anti-tank and anti-personnel mines suffered burned hands when the detonator of one of them exploded.

The soldier, Cpl. Joseph J. Phillips, 24, Fort Devens, Mass., was digging up an anti-tank mine when the blast went off. Another soldier was hurt in similar fashion Sunday.

At yesterday's hearing in New York, one witness said he had seen flames spouting from a smokstack not far from the pier when the explosion took place. He said he had seen them intermittently, but could not connect them with the blast.

POULTRY POINTERS

Grit

Turkeys and chickens do not have any teeth. They cannot chew their food, they only taste and swallow it. As long as they eat mash, which has been ground or "pre-chewed" for them by the mill they are able to absorb all the mash without difficulty. Of course, they must have plenty of water to do a good job of digesting. As soon as birds are given whole grain, they must have grit, which ought to be placed in a separate container. One should not give poultry or chicks whole grain for the first eight weeks of their life. The gizzard, or the third stomach, does, besides a digesting function, the food grinding for birds. The gizzard of pullets or chicks is too tender to help grind food during the first weeks of their life. Grit, at an early age when on all mash ration, increases the food consumption per pound of gained weight. Grit may be harmful and is not economical at early age.

As soon as you add whole grain to your poultry or chick ration, you must supply them with grit for more economical use of their feed. Insoluble grit will stay in the gizzard for a long time, and there it will assist the gizzard in grinding the food. It is a good practice to supply grit one or two days ahead of additional whole grain. Since grit should not do anything but aid in grinding the food, it ought to be insoluble. Soluble grit products with a high calcium content are a very excellent source of additional calcium for laying birds. Soluble grit should, however, not be used for growing stock, because the additional calcium which birds will receive would upset the ratio between calcium and phosphorus. Your regular feed rations provide a well balanced ratio between your minerals.

fore could not join him in purchasing the McSherrytown plant. The court held that Feirstein, Lantz and Re were actually acting as trustees of H. Jacob and Sons and directed they turn the McSherrytown plant over to H. Jacob and Sons.

The third opinion was in the case of Laura E. and Gertrude M. Cesse, Franklin township, vs. the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania. The action involved a motion to assess costs in an eminent domain proceeding. The court's opinion held that the Commonwealth should pay all costs in the appeal of the Misses Cesse from the decision of the board of viewers in connection to the damages to their property in Franklin township caused by the re-location of the Lincoln highway and stated, "In view of the fact that the Commonwealth conceded that the award of the viewers was inadequate and the fact that the verdict of the jury represented the amount of damages fixed by the Commonwealth's own witnesses with an allowance of damages for a delay in payment, it follows that the necessary costs incurred must be assessed against the Commonwealth."

Interstate League

(By The Associated Press)
Hagerstown maintained its three game lead over second place Wilmington in the Interstate league last night (Friday) by shutting out Trenton 2 to 0.

Joe Reardon hurled his fifth straight victory at Hagerstown made it three straight over Trenton. It was the first shutout win registered by a Hagerstown pitcher and the first time Trenton has been blanked.

Wilmington scored an unearned run in the seventh inning to edge York 1 to 0 behind the combined four hit pitching of southpaw Dick Smullen and Leo Cristante. Manager Skeeter Newsome reached first on an error and scored on singles by Matt Pliszka and Dick Young.

Third place Harrisburg won its seventh straight game by topping Lancaster 6 to 1 in the opener of a doubleheader but saw its streak snapped in the night cap 10 to 6. Lancaster grabbed an eight run lead in the second game and stood off Harrisburg rallies.

The Allentown Cardinals, after losing an early 5 to 0 lead, pushed across an unearned marker in the 13th inning to knock over Sunbury 9 to 8 in a three hour and 47 minute marathon.

Sports Roundup

By HUGH FULLERTON, JR.
New York, May 27 (AP)—Give a thought to the plight of Rip Engle, who says he detests spring football practice. . . . Rip was holding spring drills at Brown when he received and accepted a coaching offer from Penn State. . . . Since he didn't know a thing about the Penn State squad, which already had completed one session, he persuaded the lads to come out for two weeks more practice. . . . Now he has some 40 athletes who served their freshman year at various state teachers colleges around Pennsylvania coming in for a week's look-see so he'll have an idea what to expect of them as sophomores next fall. . . . "It's essential in present-day football," Rip moans. . . .

EMBARRASSING RICHES
Right after Davidson made a clean sweep of the Southern conference tennis tournament, winning the singles and doubles titles and team honors, Publicity Man Jo Jo Thompson up and resigned. . . . After trying to beat the drums for teams which, in two seasons, showed only eight victories in 52 football and baseball games, Jo Jo decided he just couldn't stand publicity and resigned to enter the stocks and bonds business. . . . When a thing like that happens to a press agent, you can be sure securities in North Carolina will show a bull-ish trend.

SPORTSMENION

Billy Henderson, Georgia baseball captain, finished his college career with a four year batting average of .375 (.386 this season) and South-eastern conference Ump Frankie Allen says Billy is the fastest man he ever saw getting down to first base. . . . Before Southern California's Dick Atlesley clipped the world high-jump record with that 13.5 foot last week, he had devoted three evenings to acting in a campus play, which kept him on his feet until after midnight. . . . When Hank Johnson, former Yankee pitcher, read about Hank Greenberg blaming the pitchers for dragged-out baseball games, he growled: "Greenberg used to take his own sweet time at the plate—and don't let anybody tell you he didn't."

ONslow FIRED BY SOX; MACKS SHAKEUP STAFF

By JACK HAND
(Associated Press Sports Writer)

Firing of Jack Onslow as manager of the Chicago White Sox and the vigorous shakeup of the Philadelphia A's high command has the baseball world buzzing today.

Even the New York Yankees' nine-game win streak and sizzling pace of the Brooklyn Dodgers are overshadowed by the managerial changes.

Onslow's ousting came as no surprise. Jack's name had been on the wall since last fall because of a feud with the White Sox front office.

When Onslow heard the news he said, "they won't second guess me any more. As far as I'm concerned Lane (General Manager Frank Lane) can manage the team and Comiskey (Vice President Charles A. Comiskey) can coach at third base—or any place else he so desires." That tells the story.

Johnny (Red) Corriden, former Brooklyn and Yankee coach and Minor league pilot, was moved up from coach to manager for the rest of the season.

The new deal at Philadelphia is more complicated. Manager and club President Connie Mack, now 87, named Jimmy Dykes assistant manager and Mickey Cochrane general manager of the club. Both former Athletic greats were working for Connie as coaches.

While Dykes and Cochrane moved up, Connie's son, Earle, who has been running the club as assistant manager, became chief player scout. He is to leave "immediately" in search of new talent.

Yanks Win 9th
Onslow's firing wasn't announced until after the Sox' 2-1 loss to Cleveland. The Philadelphia changes were released before they were beaten 2-0 by the Yankees.

Casey Stengel brought in Joe Page for the second day in a row when the A's threatened in the ninth. Elmer Valo singled and Ferris Fain doubled to put men on second and third with two out. Page replaced Eddie Lopat and threw one ball. Pete Suder lifted the pitch to centerfield to end the game.

Hal Newhouse showed no traces of his shoulder trouble in his second route-going job against the St. Louis Browns. Hal gave the Browns six hits, riding home with an 11-2 win. The Boston Red Sox and Washington were not scheduled.

Burt Shotton tried his Brooklyn relief pitcher, Jack Banja, as a starter and came up with a complete game victory, 5-1, over Boston and Johnny Sain, a six-time winner.

The Phillies remained one game back by whipping New York, 3-2.

Roy Smalley hit a bases loaded home run in the fourth inning to give the Cubs a 4-0 victory over Pittsburgh.

Kenny Raffensberger let down the Cardinals with six hits while Cincinnati banged out a 9-4 edge.

Settlement Ends Diamond Law Suit

Binghamton, N. Y., May 27 (AP)—A $500 settlement yesterday ended a law suit in behalf of a youth who accused former Major Leaguer Buddy Hassett of slapping his face in a baseball park.

Chester Ligas, 19, alleged that Hassett slapped him before an Eastern league game Sept. 7, 1948, between Binghamton and Hartford, at Johnson field in nearby Johnson City. At the time Hassett was manager and first baseman of the Binghamton club.

Hassett, former first baseman for the New York Yankees, Boston Braves and Brooklyn Dodgers, now manages the Colorado Springs team of the Class A Western league.

Eastern League

(By The Associated Press)
The Wilkes-Barre Barons have regained their three-game Eastern league lead, and the Albany Senators have moved into a second-place tie—each though the aid of bases on balls.

Wilkes-Barre collected 17 walks last night in a 9-7 victory over Binghamton. Ten walks, plus three hits, in the last innings enabled the Barons to overcome a 7-2 deficit.

Albany tied Binghamton for second by beating Elmira twice 8-7 and 7-3. Hartford and Williamsport split a twin bill. Hartford won the first, 7-1, and dropped the second, 7-3. Utica downed Scranton, 11-8.

DYKES IS AIDE TO CONNIE MACK; BOOST COCHRANE

Philadelphia, May 27 (AP)—Jimmy Dykes was named assistant manager and Mickey Cochrane elevated to general manager as the Philadelphia Athletics underwent their most drastic high command shakeup in 50 years.

The sweeping changes were announced dramatically last night by 87-year-old Owner-Manager Connie Mack after a hasty meeting of the club's board of directors. In disclosing that Dykes would replace his son, Earl, as assistant manager and Cochrane would take charge of the farm system and all playing personnel, Mack said:

"In an effort to bolster the playing personnel of the Athletics, Earle Mack will assume duties as chief player scout. Earl will leave immediately to tour the A's farm clubs."

"Jimmy Dykes will become the new assistant manager. Mickey Cochrane has been named general manager and will give up his duties as coach."

Boost for Cochrane
"Cochrane will have complete charge of the farm system, all playing personnel, the signing of players, future trades, etc."

The members of the board of directors, in whose name the changes were announced, are Roy, Earle and Connie Mack, Jr., Benjamin Shibe MacFarland and Bertram Pierre Rambo. Earle was ill and not present at the meeting but when informed of the changes, said, "If everyone feels I can be of more service seeking out talent, I am more than happy to do what I can."

Sitting alone on the bench for the first time since he withdrew Earle from the coaching lines in Boston in 1948, Connie said he was convinced the change would benefit the club.

"I have great confidence in Cochrane and Dykes and I know they will continue to do a great job. We will miss Cochrane on the field, but Mickey is the type to do a great job in the front office. Yes, I am quite happy about the new setup."

Team Is Disappointment
Cochrane was the star catcher on the Athletics' championship teams of 1929, 30 and 31. He became manager of the Detroit Tigers in 1934 and piloted the club to a pennant in his first year. He was released by the Tigers in mid-season of 1938 and was out of baseball until brought back this winter by Mack as pitching coach of the Athletics.

Dykes also played on the Philadelphia champions of 20 years ago and later became manager of the Chicago White Sox. He has been a coach with the A's for the past two years.

The changes became effective before last night's game with the New York Yankees. The move was designed to help get the Athletics out of the second division and back into the thick of the American league pennant race. The team has been a distinct disappointment.

STRIKING NEW DEVELOPMENT IN AMERASIA CASE

Washington, May 27 (AP)—A striking new development involving the 1945 Amerasia case brought a fresh dispute today between Senator McCarthy (R-Wis.) and the Senate group investigating his charges of communism in the government.

The new development came in the form of a statement by a former government prosecutor that the Justice Department case against the Amerasia defendants all but fell apart when some of them learned that major evidence against them had been obtained illegally.

The defendants were charged with unlawful removal of hundreds of secret government documents, some of which were found in the offices of Amerasia magazine, a now-defunct publication which dealt with Far Eastern affairs.

"Fantastic" Procedure
The government prosecutor in the case was Robert M. Hitchcock, who read his statement behind closed doors yesterday to the Senate relations subcommittee studying McCarthy's charges.

In releasing the statement later, Chairman Tydings (D-Md.) said additional testimony by Hitchcock was not being made available because there was no time to prepare it.

That prompted a sharp comment from McCarthy, who has called the Amerasia case a key part of his charges that the State Department harbors Communists and Communist sympathizers.

"The new practice of hearing a witness in secret session and carefully selecting the parts of his testimony which will be made public and the parts which will be kept secret is fantastic beyond belief," McCarthy declared.

PEOPLE WHO SOOTHE

People influence our lives more than we ever realize. There are those, whom just to meet is an inspiring influence, whereas the stimulating factor of some is pure medicine to the mind and heart. Then there is the example of people whom we have never met, but read about—famous people who have done useful things in the world.

But the people most highly valued and beloved are those who soothe us in spirit, and instill within us a sense of responsibility. Those people are mostly among the humble of everyday life, people who are rarely pointed out, but who, nevertheless, have great power in the world, or in the circle within which they move and have their being.

These people who soothe us are not the talkative, telltale type, but the quiet thinking sort, with comfort and hope in their words and manner. They look upon the bright side of things, have few illusions, have known sorrow and disappointment, but retain their faith and sense of values. Such people make up the small handful that we hoard and honor as our friends.

When trouble comes, and we are confused over happenings, or events, we want people around us who give us a lift, and who soothe both our physical and spiritual distress. It may be no more than the press of the hand, an assuring look, or the promise of a prayer, from such a one, but thereby hangs the miracle!

An English writer, telling of the sale of great masterpieces at auction, mentioned it as "in the quietude of the paint," so inspiring it was to note the effect of such great art upon those who came to buy and to wonder. This same quietude comes over one when dining with a friend, or when relieved from worry by one who has an understanding heart.

People who have formed the habit of speaking softly, using words of kindness and consideration, are the benefactors in our everyday life. They move about quietly. They seek out for ways in which to serve, and they themselves are sought! Tie to them, for they are the inheritors of heaven here and now.

BOYHOOD

I see them at their way to school;
I watch them at their play—
Our nation of tomorrow—the youngsters of today.

With freedom's flag above them—the red, the white, the blue,
The freedom of tomorrow is passing in review.

They're little boys this morning, but oh, so fast they grow!
The time to train and guide them will all too quickly go.
But in their smiling faces and in their boisterous glee
Our country of tomorrow the passerby may see.

The manhood of tomorrow, we hear them called today,
And ours the task to teach them and show to them the way.
The liberty we cherish, their care will shortly be.
Our nation of tomorrow—God grant they'll keep it free.

Considering all the back seat driving it's surprising why we still find it necessary to stop for gas.

Tops In Booby Traps

Probably not one driver out of a thousand realizes it but one of the most dangerous things on street and highway is the green light. It is the gadget that lures us into believing that because we have the law on our side we are perfectly safe. The sort of collision that occurs when the driver with the green light meets the driver who ignores it is the kind that makes headlines.

It apparently takes years of experience to reach the point of understanding why the obviously hazardous situations in motoring usually give so little trouble. It explains why so few accidents occur on dangerous mountain passes and why blind driveways are no trap for people who habitually use them. But just let the traffic light flash the "go" of green and watch caution being thrown to the winds. Stop signs have the same effect on drivers using boulevards. They always assume the fellow coming down the side street is going to obey the law.

One For The Book

If the starter ever develops the odd habit of not wanting to crank the motor unless the clutch pedal is in the up position, don't assume that you have your wires crossed. I ran into just such a case recently, and the answer was extremely simple. It seemed that on the particular motor a thrust washer on the crankshaft was missing. Evidently in a repair job this little item was omitted. As a result when the clutch pedal was pressed down the crankshaft changed position enough so that the starter pinion gear did not mesh properly with the flywheel ring gear.

Instruction books warn against lubricating the carburetor, but some of those external controls would benefit by cleaning with carbon tetrachloride or any other simple cleansing agent. Dirt on these parts will interfere with that fine adjustment of the choke control in particular. That this is true is demonstrated by one of the latest carburetor designs which provides for enclosure of the unloader, fast idle cam and choke trip lever. The idea is to prevent dirt and oil from interfering with the action of this control.

Mechanic Joe Speaking

"Show me how a motorist uses his car, and where, and I'll explain why he or she has to have the front end of the car re-aligned so often. One of my customers is in the household appliance repair business, calling for turning his car into about two dozen driveways daily. Some of these give the car quite a wrenching.

"Few people who use their cars for neighborhood shopping realize what a jolt the front end gets when one of the wheels is jammed at an angle against a curb or a barrier. Then there are the cases where the wheels are knocked out of line by driving too fast over rough roads. A chuck hole, struck at 40 miles an hour, is like hitting the front with a sledge hammer."

It is one thing to find out what caused the engine to overheat, and to apply the remedy, and quite something else to take into account additional trouble the motor fever may have caused. How many of us stop to consider that heat rots rubber hoses? How many of us give a thought to the under-hood battery which may be divested of a lot of its electrolyte through evaporation. Overheating may also cause clutch slippage, or grabbing.

Useful In A Pinch

Removing the studs that hold an aluminum cylinder head can be made a lot simpler by soaking them for a few minutes in iodine.

Ever think to run the car up on the spare tire and wheel, laid flat on the ground, until you get the jack under the axle? This will raise the car considerably.

When one of a pair of car horns fails to blow the chances are that the trouble is with a connection at the relay. There just isn't enough juice getting to the horns.

May 29, for having the highest scholarship average during their four years at the high school.

When we're considering the adjustment of a steering gear of the worn and sector type there really are three phases to the job. It isn't just a matter of adjusting the worm end play after loosening the steering column jacket clamp. There also is the matter of adjusting the mesh between the worm and the roller. And to make it complete the sector shaft end play must be checked and changed if necessary.

A postscript to this is the fact that often what passes for steering trouble has nothing to do with the steering gear itself. Best example is the sagging of rear springs which can change front-end castor and make the car act like it needed complete steering service.

Penalty In Bad Valves

Another thing to follow in the wake of a bad case of overheating is a warped exhaust valve. This shows up as a skip at low speeds in high gear. It will be noticeable regardless of whether the engine is hot or cold, and it should be accompanied by reduced power on hills and lowered gas mileage. Overheating is nothing to humor. Replacing warped valves is a lot more expensive than a good reverse flush, rechecking the timing or making sure that the brakes aren't dragging.

Those so-called "expansion" or "freeze" plugs in the motor block are really nothing but a necessary part of the process of moulding the block, but they have to be kept in condition to check leakage. One type of plug is cup shaped with a flange. The other is dish shaped and has no flange. Different technique is needed for pressing these into place. But common to both processes is the need for cleaning the seat of each plug before inserting a new plug. It is also a good plan to coat the seat with water-proof hardening-type cement.

Keep These In Mind

If you have a good car you can detect bad compression loss by listening closely at the crankcase breather.

Spark plug gaps may be changed by overtightening the plugs when screwing them into the engine. That's why mechanics use torque wrenches.

In the Motor Mail

Q Is it necessary to rebalance a tire after each flat?—H.N.B.

A True. As a matter of fact a tire should be re-balanced after a year's use, for best results. This is particularly true if its tread is wearing unevenly because of rough braking, too fast curving, underinflation or misalignment.

Q Would a 1914 car be considered

A You would think so if you tried to get parts to put it into running condition.

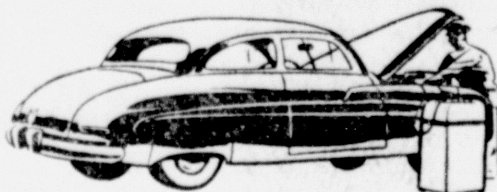

Q There's a disturbing rumble in my car when the motor is running but with the car standing still. It may be in the car when in motion, but other noises probably blot it out.—G. T.

A Check for a loose muffler.

Q Should the fuel filter be located between the fuel pump and the carburetor or between the fuel line and the pump?—H. L. B.

A The preferred position is just ahead of the fuel pump. Here it can protect the pump as well as the carburetor.

Q With the newer tires should rear tire pressures be higher or lower than front?—T. R. D.
A This is a timely question. There seems to be no accepted policy here, some companies advising the same pressures all around. Where engineers recommend any variation the trend is toward two pounds lower pressure for the rear tires. This obviously is to take care of the increased operating temperatures of the rear tires and the consequent increase in pressure. All inflation (Please Turn to Page 8)

Dr. Fortenbaugh Continues His Series On County's Birthday

The second in a series of articles on Adams County's Sesqui-centennial by Dr. Robert Fortenbaugh, of the Gettysburg college faculty, appears in the current edition of the Bulletin of the State Department of Internal Affairs. The article follows:

Among the earliest semi-public buildings in Adams County were churches. There is, for example, Conewago Chapel.

Jesuit missionaries are known to have passed through Conewago, going to and from their established headquarters in Maryland. The very earliest date for the regular offering of Mass at Conewago seems to be 1720. By 1734 a "Mass" house had been erected, and it is certain that this was here some years before. A log church was built in 1740 where the present church, the first part of which was built in 1787, stands.

Paradise—the Jesuits missionized out of Conewago to other settlements where their services were desired. One of these was in the East Berlin-Abbotstown section where the services of the Church were held in private homes from very probably the beginning of settlement in the 1740's. The first church was not built until 1843. The same is to be said of the situation in Buchanan Valley.

Presbyterian Churches

Presbyterian Churches—In 1740 two churches, Upper Marsh Creek (now the Gettysburg Church) and the Great Conewago (Hunterstown) are known to have been in existence. The present building of Great Conewago was erected in 1787. In 1813 the Upper Marsh Creek Church (original location three miles northwest of Gettysburg at Black's Graveyard, still to be seen) moved into Gettysburg and in 1842 moved its Gettysburg location to the present site and built the present building. The Lower Marsh Creek Church was organized in 1748, and erected its present building in 1790, probably at a different location than the original building which was probably at the site of the present Lower Marsh Creek Cemetery. Two dissenting Presbyterian denominations were represented in the present county. The first was the Reformed Presbytery of which the Rock Creek Church was the representative. This was organized in 1753 and had a building one mile north of Gettysburg. The second was the Associate Presbytery of which the "Hill" Church was the representative. This was located six miles southwest of Gettysburg in Freedom Township. Its first building was erected between 1758 and 1763. In 1792-3 a stone church was erected. Services were held in it until the 1880's, and after that the building fell into disrepair, and has disappeared. After the union of the two denominations in 1782, to form the Associate Reformed Church, a church building was erected in Gettysburg about 1804. This became later a congregation of the United Presbyterian Church. The "Pines" Presbyterian Church was established later than the others mentioned. Congregation soon discontinued but its church building stood, a little south of New Chester, until 1803 when it gave way to a Union Church of Lutherans and Reformed on the same site.

Other Churches

German Reformed Churches—Mount Olivet Reformed Church (Lower Bermudian) is the oldest Reformed congregation in Adams County. Organized on March 19, 1745 by Germans who moved into that area of the northeastern part of the county.

Christ (Near Littlestown)—Date of organization, May 6, 1747. The present church building was erected in 1798. A strong center of Reformed service in early days.

Emmanuel—Abbotstown. First baptismal record, 1768; first settled pastor, 1775.

Dutch Reformed Church of Conewago—East of Hunterstown. Organized between 1765 and 1770. More below.

Lutheran Churches—Oldest Lutheran is the Lower Bermudian, organized March 19, 1745. Union with the Mt. Olivet Reformed for many years.

St. John's, Abbotstown, organized 1760.

St. John's, Littlestown, organized November 13, 1763.

Quaker Meetings—Huntingdon Meeting (unauthorized) as early as 1745. Meeting house land conveyed 1766. Meeting House still standing; erected in 1790. Inactive for many years.

Menallen, first location on Opossum Creek in present Butler Township. First meetings as early as 1746, regularly established in 1748. 1838 original site abandoned; removed to present Flora Dale. Present building built in 1884. Still active.

Christ Episcopal—"Christ Church, Huntingdon." Organized 1756 in very extreme part of present Huntingdon Township. In 1836 the old building was torn down and present Christ Church Chapel was erected in York Springs. Inactive for many years.

Methodist—Rock Chapel, established 1773. Building, which is still standing, erected immediately. Rebuilt in the 1840's. Very probably the first stone church building in the county.

Note on Dutch Reformed Church of Conewago—Owing to two large migrations of the membership, one to Kentucky and the other to New York State, this congregation disbanded and the church property was sold in 1817. The original cemetery is still easily to be found, east of Hunterstown. While most of the people of this community migrated, many remained and their descendants are numerous in the present county area.

Schools—The first school of which there is record was established at Christ Reformed Church by 1747. The first school-master was John Henry Creutz (Kreutz or Cross).

The first school of higher education was built in 1776 by the Rev. Alexander Dobbin, pastor of the Rock Creek Church.

Very few other schools existed before 1800.

First Election District

The first election district in York County was the whole county, stretching from the Susquehanna to Graffenburg Springs, with a single voting place, and that at Yorktown (York).

The first election was in October, 1749, for the office of sheriff. Candidates were Hance Hamilton, for the more westerly part, and Richard McAllister, for the more easterly part. The latter founded the town bearing his name, but now named Hanover. This was a contest between the German element in the east and the Scotch-Irish in the west. McAllister won the election but the executive of the Province preferred Hamilton and commissioned him for a 3-year term. He was again commissioned in 1752. Later he became one of the judges of the county. He died in 1772.

"Manor of the Maske"—One of the benefits of the proprietors of Pennsylvania was the right to all the land. They laid off areas as private estates, or "manors." The only recognized proprietary manor in present Adams County was the "Manor of the Maske," established by warrant in 1740. As settlers had been already on the area of the manor, they construed the survey which was begun as a threat to their claims and so drove out the surveyors. No further steps were taken in the direction of a survey until 1765. Early in that year a compromise was affected, and the claims to lands taken up prior to 1741 were allowed. The boundaries of the manor were finally marked in 1766 and were to include 43,500 acres, instead of 30,000 acres originally ordered. The land otherwise unclaimed was later disposed of by the Penn heirs by sale.

Indian Troubles

During the French and Indian War (1754-63) Indians occasionally made hostile raids into this area which, on the whole, however, was greatly protected by the frontier settlements farther westward, and by the barrier of the South Mountain. Nevertheless, the more adventurous Indians penetrated settlements, murdered and abducted some, and left a general feeling of fear, until the borders were finally quieted after Pontiac's Conspiracy ended. It is said that in 1775 the country west of the Susquehanna had 3,000 men fit to bear arms, while in 1756, exclusive of those in the provincial forces and so not generally present to defend the area, there were but 100. There were in 1756 in the provincial forces eight associated companies from York County, four of which were from the area of present Adams County with a total of 326 men, very likely commanded by local men who had recruited them. In addition Hance Hamilton, commissioned in 1756, raised a company of 200 men and took part in the battle of Siding Hill, after the Indians had burned McCord's Fort, March 4, 1756.

Block-houses, or forts, to guard the line of advance of hostile Indians were erected near Arendtsville, very likely south of Duterra's, and between Bonneville and Two Taverns.

Beyond these points of defense, the first raid of which there is record was on the Jamison home in Buchanan Valley in the spring of 1755. The family and several neighbors who had come to the house for refuge were either killed or taken captive. Mary, the daughter about 13 years of age, was taken and lived to become the famous "White Squaw." Her gravestone in northwestern New York tells her story:

In Memory of

The White Woman,
MARY JAMISON
Daughter of
THOMAS JAMISON AND JANE IRWIN.

Born on the ocean between Ireland and Phila., in 1742 or 3. Taken captive at Marsh Creek, Pa. in 1755, carried down the Ohio, adopted into an Indian family. In 1759 removed to Genesee River. Was naturalized in 1817. Removed to this place in 1831. And having survived two husbands and five children, leaving three still alive, she died Sept. 19th, 1835, aged about ninety-one years. Having a few weeks before expressed a hope of pardon through "The counsel of the Lord that shall stand."

Other attacks were: July 27, 1757. One McKisson was wounded, and his son taken captive from the South Mountain August 17, 1757. William Waugh's barn was burnt in the Tract (Carroll's), by the Indians

April 5, 1758. One man was killed and ten taken captive near Black's Gap in the South Mountain.

April 13, 1758, the house of Richard Baird (Bard) was surrounded by 19 Delaware Indians, and all occupants made prisoners—in all nine persons. Having plundered the house, setting fire to a nearby mill, and killing one of the men, the Indians withdrew into the mountains. In the time that followed three of the men were killed, Bard escaped and soon returned home, the two boys and the girl were later returned, and Mrs. Bard, after a captivity of two years and five months, was found by her husband at Shamokin (present Sunbury).

May 29, 1759, one Dunwoodie and one Crawford were shot by Indians in Carroll's Tract. These names figure prominently in the records of the first settlers in this section.

On Flat Run, near the Maryland Line, a nine-year-old Zimmerman girl was carried off by two Indians after 1765. Then years later she was found at Shamokin. She lived to be 90 years of age.

The War Of Independence

In order to organize the county for resistance to British oppression, a Committee of Safety was formed at York in July, 1775. The county was divided into 5 districts, each district to furnish a battalion of associates. The townships which now make up Adams County furnished the Second Battalion with Robert McPherson, Colonel; David Kennedy, Lieutenant Colonel; Moses McClean and Hugh Dunwoodie, Majors. In these townships, as in York County generally, evidence of distrust and opposition to the British government early began to be seen. In the spring of 1775 resolutions, backed up by a generous cash donation, went forward to the people of Boston, then suffering under the Boston Port Bill, and other coercive acts. In a rifle company which left York on July 1, 1775 and marched directly to Cambridge to participate in the siege of Boston were many men from the present Adams County. This company was first commanded by Captain Michael Dougie, and was soon a marked group by virtue of their skill with their "Pennsylvania" rifles. Recruiting throughout the present county went on rapidly through 1775 and 1776 York did its full share in the war, and of it the townships now making up Adams County were always dependable. In 1776 York was called upon to raise 4 companies, one of which Moses McClean was captain. In May, 1776, Captain William McPherson marched with his rifle company to Philadelphia. The famous Flyine Camp organized July, 1776, got from York County a considerable contribution. Many of the members of the 11th Regiment of the Pennsylvania Line, also organized in 1776, were from the present Adams County section. On the army returns for 1778, the whole number of men in the York County Militia was 4621, the townships to the west bearing their full share. In the night attack at Paoli, Sept. 1777, Captain Moses McClean's command suffered terribly.

Robert McDordie, of Marsh Creek, became brigade chaplain, July, 1779. August 18, 1781, a company was raised to act as "Light house and volunteers." Half of this was to be raised at Hanover; the other half at Marsh Creek. Officers were: William McPherson, Captain; Robert Morrison, Lieut., and James Gettys, Cornet. On May 27, 1781, General Wayne's command, going south to campaign against Cornwallis, camped at Littlestown. A number of men of this area were in this command.

Development Of The County
On the eve of its creation the area that is now Adams County was subdivided into the townships of Berwick, Franklin, Mountjoy, Mountpleasant, Cumberland, Straban, Hamiltonian, Germany, Menallen, Reading and Tyrone, and parts of Heidelberg, Manheim, Warrington, Monaghan, and Huntingdon. From them, by further sub-division, have come the present 21 townships.

By 1800 the following towns or villages were in existence: Abbotstown laid out, 1753, incorporated 1835; East Berlin laid out, 1764, incorporated 1879; Littlestown laid out, 1765, incorporated 1864; McSherrystown laid out, 1765, incorporated 1884; Gettysburg laid out, 1786, incorporated 1806; (First quit-rents dated Jan. 10, 1786); New Oxford laid out, 1792, incorporated 1874; Hunterstown laid out about 1750, not incorporated.

The "Monacacy" Road, oldest road in the county, was opened from York, southwesterly to the Maryland line. It cuts through only a small part of present Adams County, from Hanover through Littlestown, and served the oldest settled area. It was laid out about 1740; a great Indian trail between the Susquehanna and the Potomac.

The "Marsh Creek" Road took off at a point on the above road about 5 miles from York, ran south of west through the sites of Abbotstown and New Oxford, then north of west through the sites of Hunterstown and Mummastown, to a point between the sites of Arendtsville and Hilltown. Then it crossed the mountain into Cumberland County.

Hagerstown Road

The "Hagerstown" Road took off at a point on above road a short distance west of the site of New Oxford; then south of west through the sites of Gettysburg, Fairfield, and Fountandale; then across the mountains and on to the site of Hagerstown, 1747-8.

It crossed the Susquehanna at the approximate site of Marietta and ran southwesterly to the site of East Berlin, thence westerly through the

60 COUNTRIES WANT TO SHARE IN POINT 4 AID

Washington, May 27 (AP)—About 60 countries and dependent areas want to share in the "Point Four" program of U. S. Help provided for in the foreign aid authorization now passed by Congress.

State department officials reported this Friday, following the Senate's 47 to 27 vote of approval for the $3,120,550,000 aid bill.

The vote, late yesterday, gave President Truman his first major victory of the year in the field of foreign policy.

Republican Senate leaders fought unsuccessfully to block final action on the bill with an attack on the $35,000,000 Point Four plan to benefit backward areas of the world with American technical aid.

The Senate voted to accept a Senate-House conference agreement sites of Heidelsburg, Biglerville, Arendtsville and thence southerly to Hilltown and into the Marsh Creek Road.

The North-South Roads began at the Maryland line. The earliest north-south road ran through the sites of Hanover, Abbotstown and East Berlin into the Cumberland Valley through the probable site of Dillsburg. May be considered to be the continuation of the "Patapsco" Road, running northward from Baltimore. Laid out in Maryland in 1736; recorded in Pennsylvania in 1767. Another started at approximate site of Heidelsburg and ran on a straight line northeasterly to meet above road at probable site of Dillsburg. Still another began at a point about 2 miles west of Marsh Creek on the Hagerstown Road, and ran straight northerly to site of Arendtsville; a fourth, the "Cross-Keys" Road, from the Conewago Settlement (Hanover section) to Carlisle; and the "Shippensburg" Road started at the Maryland line and ran through sites of Littlestown, Gettysburg, Arendtsville, through the "Narrows" to the mountains and on to Shippensburg. The point of the crossing of this road and the "Hagerstown" Road created "Gettys Cross Roads."

on the foreign aid measure. This action sent the authorization bill to the White House for Mr. Truman's expected signature.

Congress must still act on an appropriations bill supplying the money. In this connection, the Economic Cooperation Administration (ECA), which administers the aid program, reported it would have $277,000,000 left over from the current fiscal year ending June 30. This is $127,900,000 more than had been previously estimated as a carryover.

The Senate Republicans let it be known they will carry on their fight against the Point Four program, so-called in its position in Mr. Truman's inaugural address.

To Fight Malaria
State department officials who told of the 60 requests for Point Four aid noted that the cost of meeting all of them would be several times the $35,000,000 Congress authorized.

The department is planning for a prompt start. Assuming the necessary actual appropriation will be voted by June 30, officials said the first project should be under way by the end of the summer.

Included probably will be an attack on a malaria-infested area in the Middle East or southeast Asia through a big scale DDT spraying campaign.

Only the most feasible of the requests already submitted can be put into effect at the outset, officials said. In the meantime applicant countries will be asked for further details.

REFUSE MORE CLEANUP TIME

Harrisburg, May 27 (AP)—The State Sanitary Water Board Friday rejected a plea by 56 central Pennsylvania communities for more time to comply with the Commonwealth's clean streams program.

The action was disclosed by Dr. Norris W. Vaux, state health secretary and board chairman.

"The clean streams law says we can't hold the orders up any longer," said Dr. Vaux. "Those communities are now in for delinquent orders."

Further failure in carrying out orders to build sewage treatment plants, he said, will mean that the cases will be turned over to the state Justice department for prosecution.

The central Pennsylvania municipalities, located along the Susquehanna and Juniata river, had sought an extension of time for construction work. They had received orders to complete new sewage treatment systems by June 1952.

Mayor Claude R. Robins of Harrisburg headed a special six-man committee and told the board that the communities were financially unable to follow through with construction of treatment plants to keep sewage and filth out of the streams.

FIRST STAR

By Mary Howard

AP Newsfeatures

Chapter 18
It was all nonsense and they both knew it, but they loved to do it. A bell buzzed down in the theater.

"That's the overture," she said. "I must go and see L.M. He brought me some flowers."

"Everybody but me."
"You brought me the best of all." They kissed lightly, because of the thick paint on their lips, and she went downstairs on flying feet to see Morton.

She said quickly, "Thank you, Governor, for the flowers."

"Oh?" He turned away from the stage and looked at her. "Hmmm. You were late."

"Not really."
"You know the rule. In the theater an hour before the curtain goes up on the first night. Otherwise I think you're run over or something."

She smiled, and his eyes watched her from under their heavy-lidded, shaggy brows with sudden suspicion. "You're happy. What about? This part? Don't be too sure of yourself."

"That, and something else."

"What something else?"

"It's a secret."

"I know all about that. I can keep secrets."

"She said, bursting to tell someone and knowing she could trust him."

"William wants to marry me."

"Nothing much to be pleased at in that. Supposing he goes to America?"

"I know all about that. I shall go too."

"And leave me in the middle of a season?"

"Oh, no," she said, shocked. "Of course not. Why, surely he isn't doing that? He wouldn't let you down, I know."

He looked at her, and like Andrew he could not quench the happiness in her eyes. He said crossly, "No, it's all arranged. He's done what I expected of him."

"To finish the season, and then go to him. Don't tell anybody, Governor, will you?"

"No. Now get around to your place. The curtain's going up."

"Thank you for the flowers again."

"Get along with you," he watched her run around to her place, and William came crowding through the maze-lined doors. He whispered a "shush!" and they were silent.

The music faded and the curtain rose slowly on the garden with its clipped hedges, and the fountain, and the statue of Love, immobile in his gray paint, waiting for his small speech, the gardeners working about the beds, and the gardener's boy chanting on his ladder.

Another first night had begun.

The house was full. All the visitors, local people, the London critics, Sydney Blount and his wife and mossy little daughter, Magda, dramatically beautiful in black with some little white orchids, her father and Andrew, in a line across the fifth row. Andrew knew that Morton had chosen the play because of William. Because the part of Pierrot had everything William possessed: charm, good looks, cynicism, gaiety, pathos, romance, remorse. William did play it quite beautifully, but already at the first intermission people were talking about Prunella. Local people who went regularly: "It's the girl with the red-brown hair you see in the village. She does bits as a rule. Isn't she good?" The critics, thinking out their paragraphs: "Miss Best brings tears and tenderness to this silly but charming little play."

The visitors: "She really is lovely." And Andrew, listening, realized that she was stealing the show, and that she was proud of her, and that she was alive with happiness, and that probably he had been a complete fool, and she and William were all right.

The last scene was the sentimental duet of passionate pathos that it is meant to be, and they played it beautifully, catching light from each other, catching the audience with them, until when the curtain went down on them, with the song of love all about them, and his head handsome and repentant, cradled against her breast, Andrew realized that the outburst in the audience was in itself an emotional release, and that there were very few dry eyes present.

Mr. Hamlyn blew his nose with such undisguised frankness, and rushed applauding so heartily, that Andrew could have kissed him. They clapped and called, and finally William led Katherine forward to take a call by herself, sinking down in the white circle of her ballet dress, her head with its little humble, earnest stoop thanking them all so graciously.

Mr. Hamlyn leaned across Magda. "The girl's as good as the boy, Andy," he said.

"I told you to look out for her."

"What a pair they'd make for the two star parts. But it's no use. We can't afford to have two unknown names. But I'd like an option on that girl. I'd like to sell her to them over there." He caught the expression on Magda's face, set and stony, and was suddenly silent.

"She hasn't the looks for pictures," Magda said. "She's too blue."

"She's an actress," said Andrew. Her look pitted him. "You see her through a golden haze. Andy."

"I don't," said her father suddenly. He rose, and there was a curious tension between them that Andrew could not quite understand. "Shall we go behind and see them all? I want to meet Morton and I want to meet that girl."

"I'll go and find him," said Andrew, and pushed his way through the crowd toward the side doors.

Chapter 19
Sydney Blount came excitedly to Hamlyn, his women trailing in the rear. Both Mrs. Blount and End were a trifle pink about the nose.

"Well, what do you think about Brody now?" demanded Sydney eagerly.

"He's got all you said," said Mr. Hamlyn. "Yes, he's got what it takes. Well, sign up tomorrow morning."

"I thought he was wonderful," End Blount sighed dully. "He's better than—better than Sir Lawrence Oliver."

"Hmmm," said Mr. Hamlyn doubtfully. "The girl's good—this Katherine Best girl. She's really something. Look, Sydney, I've nothing for her, nothing in mind, but I've been thinking an option on her, just in case anything should turn up."

"Daddy," Magda said suddenly, "we've got this party. Mrs. Blount, could you and End possibly go over ahead of us? You will? That's awfully kind. You see we have to meet this wonderful Morton that every-one talks about, and I'd be so grateful if you'd see if everything was quite ready."

"Come on, honey, this way," said Mr. Hamlyn.

"We'll go down the side lane, to the stage door. I want to speak to you."

He followed her nervously outside, and they stood alone in the moonlight.

"Well?"

"If you sign that girl up and take her home, I'll go away and I won't ever see or speak to you again so long as I live, so help me!"

"Now, Magda honey," he protested, "this is business. That girl's good. She deserves her chance in films. We can at least give her a test. If she's no good photographically, okay, but if she's half as good as she is on the boards, I owe it to myself, and the company—"

"You're not addressing a board meeting, you're talking to me," said Magda coldly. "She is in love with William. He's probably in love with her. I've told you if you sign her up to go back to the States, you will not see me again."

He felt unutterably weary. "All right, Magda," he said. "All right, honey. But one day when I'm a little older and a little wiser, I'll tell you to go."

"I'll put your arms around his neck, all sweetness and softness and perfume and clean shining hair. That's my darling Daddy," she said.

They went in to meet Morton, who was rather in the mood of a balloon, in to Andrew's surprise, and Mr. Hamlyn treated each other with instant understanding and respect.

"I'm sorry to take Brody away from you," said Mr. Hamlyn.

"You've been very generous about it. I wish for your own sake you'd be a bit more business-like."

"I don't want people who want to get away," said Morton heavily. "If they think they know all I can teach them, then let them go. When I know them, then I send 'em."

"There it is. It's not generosity. It's my creed. You'll forgive me if I don't accept your invitation, Mr. Hamlyn. I'm tired, and I like my own cooking. Andy, au revoir. Don't be too late. I'd like to talk tonight."

"Well, come along with us, then," interposed Mr. Hamlyn.

"By my own hearth," said Morton. He paused and asked, "How about my Prunella?"

Mr. Hamlyn said with difficulty, "She's a wonderful kid, but I like to sign her up for later on. I'd just not want to see—"

Morton scowled at him puzzled. "You sound as though you don't really think that, do you?"

"No," said Mr. Hamlyn.

"You've your own reasons. I'm glad. Leave her alone. She will stay, and she will succeed in the end, because she has the humble heart of true greatness."

He put on his great hat and went out on this effective speech.

The party was a considerable success and made local history for some time to come. The whole cast came and drank Mr. Hamlyn's champagne and had a wonderful time. Katherine danced and talked and smiled and waved. William was very happy. Tonight she would not sort out the mixture of pride and hope, of doubt and love that ran around and round inside her mind like a lot of mad puppies. She did not even notice that no one noticed her. She did not think it was evening had been her success, it was William who was taking the applause here. He was happy, therefore he must be doing what he wanted to do, and he loved her. He wanted her to marry him.

Andrew watched her dancing, very light and fragile in her swirling white ballet skirt, a rose tucked in the coil of hair atop her neat little head, her eyes danced with every-thing, and there was a with a gentle wistfulness and pride. If she noticed Magda's preoccupation with him, it did not worry her. She was sure of him tonight. Andrew himself drank a lot of champagne, and danced with Miss Blount, and made a speech about the Morton genius factory, and about 12 o'clock decided to go home. He made his goodbyes to the Hamlyns and Blounts, but William caught him just as he reached the lounge.

"Would you do something for me, Nolan?" he said quickly.

"Well?"

"Would you take Kate home? She's tired, and Mr. Hamlyn and Mrs. Blount want to talk one or two things over with me."

"It's only just across the road," said Andrew. "Couldn't you go and come back?"

"Don't you want to take her?" said William in surprise.

"Yes, why not?" Andrew said indifferently. "It's simply that she would much rather you took her. Still, he made an attempt at lightness, 'if you trust your beloved to me, it is an honor.'"

Chapter 20
William made a mowing boy, his wide white sleeve sweeping through the air. There was a chink in every-one's armor, if you could find it, and he had found it in Andrew's.

"I trust her anywhere, with anyone, to the world's end," he said. His voice was light and gentle, but his eyes were very amused. She will forgive me anything, they said. She does not know you are alive when I am there. Andrew turned away.

"Very well," he said dryly. "Go and fetch the sacrifice."

"What do you mean?" said William coldly.

Andrew turned back to him; for a moment he was unguarded, sincere, and strangely young. Brody, I've worked all this for you. But I realize what you mean to Katherine. Must you leave her here?"

"She would not break her contract with Morton. She does not want to leave him."

"At the moment she would do anything you wanted her to, though, of course, she's wise to stay with Morton. If you must go, I'll help you; it needn't affect your publicity. No one need know until after 'Devil-May-Care,' and then you can tell the world."

"You think it will be a success?"

"I know it will. It's a fine story, and the parts fit you like a glove. You're one of the best directors in America. Lined up, you can't miss."

William drew up a little breath. "I'll be able to do as I like," he held out his hand. "I'll think over what you say. Katherine and I wanted to keep this quiet, but when you're happy it's difficult to keep it to yourself. You'll look after her while I'm away, won't you?"

He had Andrew so completely surprised by his obvious sincerity that he did not reply. Katherine came in, a coat thrown over her bare shoulders, and she stopped, surprised and pleased to see them together. William turned to her at once.

"Mr. Nolan will see you home, Kate. I have to stay for a while. You should mind, do you, darling?"

"You shouldn't have troubled. It's just a step."

"Good night, my darling." He bent and kissed her as though he wished Andrew to see that he claimed her, that she was his; as though he wanted to reassure him.

"Good night," she said.

They walked across the wide main road together in silence, under the chestnut trees, to her door. She turned and gave him her hand, smiling a little mischievously.

"You're friends now?"

"Sydney Blount with Mr. Hamlyn, Magda, and William, sat in the Hamlyns' private sitting room. The Blount women had retired, but Magda had changed into a long velvet housecoat and was making them coffee.

Sydney lifted his glass. "Well, here's to you, William, my boy. Don't worry about your passage; we'll do all the bookings for you."

Magda said slowly, "We'd like it if you'd arrange to travel with us. The big liners are a bore, unless you're traveling with friends."

"Thank you," said William absently. "I'd like to."

She said suddenly, "Are you in love with the little Best girl?"

William raised his head warily. He did not like being monopolized, and she must learn that he did not like it.

"What if I am?" he said impudently.

"Well, you can't—" began Blount.

"You mustn't do anything foolish, my boy," said Hamlyn.

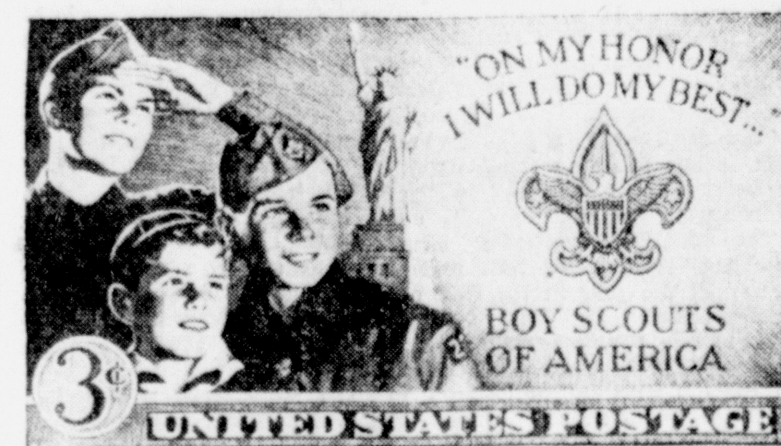

"What they mean," said Magda, "is that they don't want you to marry at this point in your career. I thought I'd better warn you. You don't want to be involved in anything you can't get out of."

"I shan't do that," he said.

The most important thing to remember, Katherine told herself, was that it would not be for long. William would leave for the States at the end of the month, and she would work with Morton until October, when his season ended. By then William would have settled down in Hollywood; he would send her the money for her fare, and she would go out to him. It was better to think of that than to think of herself. "In four weeks' time, William will have gone—he will go to the other side of the earth, and I shall be quite alone."

They played out the run of "Prunella" together, gradually perfecting themselves so that the house was filled nightly and people came to

Issue Commemorative Stamp For National Scout Jamboree

Postmaster General Jesse M. Donaldson in announcing details of the three-cent commemorative stamp honoring the Boy Scouts of America, to be released at Valley Forge, Pa., on June 30, the opening day of the National Jamboree, pays high tribute to the organization.

"The issuance of the Boy Scout stamp is a governmental recognition of the great work that scouting is performing," Mr. Donaldson said. "In character building and in instilling a patriotic citizenship for the future, I am very happy that a favorable opportunity was presented for us to honor this organization."

The stamp will be 0.84 by 1.44 inches in dimensions, arranged horizontally. It will be printed in brown by the rotary process, electric-eye perforated, and issued in sheets of 50. An initial printing of 125,000,000 Boy Scout commemorative stamps has been authorized.

Symbol Of Scouts
Appearing prominently in the left-center portion of the stamp will be a group of three boys, typifying the three age level programs of the Boy Scouts of America: namely, left to right, Exploring, Cub Scouting and Boy Scouting. In the background, to the right of the boys, is a reproduction of the Statue of Liberty, symbolizing the organization's crusade to "Strengthen the Army of Liberty."

In the right-center portion appears the Universal Badge of the Boy Scouts of America, above which is the wording "On My Honor I Will Do My Best." The opening phrase of the Scout Oath, and below, "Boy Scouts of America" in dark Roman lettering. In a narrow shaded panel across the bottom of the stamp are the words "United States Postage" in white faced Roman, with the denomination numeral "3c" enclosed in a circle in the extreme lower left corner.

The finished model of the Boy Scout stamp was sketched by Charles R. Chickering, who also designed the Lincoln-Gettysburg commemorative stamp. The vignette was engraved by Charles A. Brooks and the lettering, numerals and frame were engraved by Edward H. Helmuth.

In concluding his description, Mr. Donaldson said, "Plans of the Na-

York Springs—The 10-room house, occupied until her death some weeks ago by Mrs. Lucretia Neely Myers, and her store building with its fixtures and stock are being offered this afternoon at public auction in connection with the settlement of her estate. The executrix of Mrs. Myers' estate is Miss Thelma M. Ruppert, who resided with Mrs. Myers for the past 11 years and assisted in the store.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles G. Hershey of the Pittsburgh area, who have been visiting their son and his family at Aberdeen, Md., also were recent visitors to relatives here.

The young people of the local Lutheran church conducted a "supper meeting" at the church property last Sunday evening.

The infant daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Baird Hershey, born May 13, has been named Bonnie Jane.

Mrs. Charles Middleton, Jr., who has been staying here for a time during the absence of her husband who is with the army in Japan, has received word from him that he is recovering at a hospital in that country after a major operation last year.

see them again and again. It had been quite exciting to find herself at least a local celebrity, and if her every waking thought had not been with William, she would have enjoyed it. Schoolgirls waited outside the theater to ask for her autograph and sent her bunches of summer flowers. When she walked down the street, glances followed her, and voices said: "That's Prunella . . ." Her landlady referred to her proudly as "My Miss Best." The people who asked Heather and Viola to parties asked her, too, but she always refused, because this was her last week with William. Next week he would be going back to London to get ready for his trip, and to spend the money Mr. Hamlyn had advanced him.

He was very close to her during those two weeks, with a new tenderness which he had not shown before. Every minute of their spare time was spent together, and every minute slipped away into the inexorable cavern of past things. If Broadway had been beautiful before to Katherine, it became unbearably lovely now, because over everything they did and saw and said was the terrible poignancy of its being the last time.

NAVY OFFICER ARRESTED FOR $19,000 THEFT

Los Angeles, May 27 (AP)—What would make a Navy officer, with 19 years of honorable service, and a ship's safe of $19,000 and then blow it all in a wild six month binge with a blonde?

Blascom B. Boaz is in the county jail today accused in lieu of that. Broke, he is there of just $10,000 bail awaiting preliminary hearing on federal charges of embezzlement of government funds and desertion from the U. S. Navy.

What made the 42-year-old officer do it?

"Domestic trouble started me drinking," he said, "and drinking magnifies all troubles. That kept on until I felt like I was cracking up."

Tall, sturdy and looking very much like a Navy officer with his iron gray hair, Boaz said he drank very little before the war but took it up strong after he separated from his wife in 1941. He said there would have been a divorce then but the war came. He didn't want to go into combat legally separated from his two children.

He served most of the war on the Battleship Idaho in the Aleutians, Gilberts, Marshalls, Saipan and Guam campaigns.

"Combat action had no effect on my mental condition but my drinking did. I did crazy things when I drank."

"I knew I was slipping. I wasn't doing the service any good. Only the help of my fellow officers got me by."

In March of 1949, he said he offered to resign his commission but was retained because of his record. A native of Marion, Tenn., he first enlisted in the Navy as an apprentice seaman.

"I guess they'd take my resignation now."

His current trouble started last Thanksgiving when he got drunk in a Long Beach hotel and felt the urge to continue the binge.

"I went over to the ship (the Navy tanker Navasota) and went aboard. I had a right to. I was the paymaster. I left the ship 20 minutes later, drunk and with $19,201.50, mostly in small bills."

Generous To Cabby
He hailed a cab and told the driver to head north. I handed him $300.

gave him $500 more on the way. I also tipped him $180 so he could buy a television set for his boy.

"In Oakland, I gave him another $1,600 to go out and buy me an automobile. That's the last I ever saw of that guy."

Boaz estimated that he spent $8,000 of the cash on taxi fares. His reason was simple:

"I don't drive."

At Fresno, Calif., on the way up to the San Francisco-Oakland area, he picked up blonde Pearl Rosemary Carter.

"She stole me the money," Miss Carter was with Boaz when the FBI and Naval Intelligence officers arrested him early yesterday. She was not held but told agents of the trip:

"It was great while it lasted. We had a great time."

Parents Are Denied Right To Baby

Youngstown, O., May 27 (AP)—Blonde, 28-month-old Shirley Ann Bednarik was a Mahoning county Child Welfare board ward Thursday.

Judge Henry P. Beckenbach assigned her to the board after a juvenile court hearing in which the child's parents disputed the claim of a Pennsylvania woman that Shirley was hers for adoption.

Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Bednarik of nearby Campbell admitted they took their baby from Mrs. Josephine Martz, a Brookville, Pa., social worker, last Saturday at Mrs. Martz's home.

The 19-year-old Mrs. Bednarik said her parents coerced her into giving Shirley Ann to Mrs. Martz for adoption about a year ago when the Bednariks were separated. Now reconciled, they want their daughter back.

Judge Beckenbach ruled that before the Bednariks can regain their little girl they must prove in a six-month probationary period that they are fit parents.

WILDCAT BOLT CLOSES PLANT AT OAK RIDGE

Oak Ridge, Tenn., May 27 (AP)—A mammoth atomic plant construction project was shutdown completely today by a wildcat walkout of AEC workers.

The strike, which members of the Laborers and Hodcarriers union began Wednesday without warning, spread to all other crafts working on the project, the Atomic Energy commission reported.

"The project is completely shut down," said an AEC spokesman. "We haven't been informed by the union or anybody else as to what the walkout is all about."

The laborers started the strike

Wednesday and today the craftsmen joined them," the spokesman, who withheld use of his name, added.

The strike came a day after an arbitration board had ended a hearing on a wage dispute involving the Laborers and Hodcarriers' union.

"I'll probably have to do down and talk to the boys," said John S. Turner, conciliation consultant for the union. He asserted the union did not authorize the strike.

"I haven't the slightest idea who the instigators of this thing are," he added.

Affects Security
The AEC and the contractor said the effects of the strike could not be gauged yet, but Turner, declaring the laborers "should go back," termed the strike project "a job of such scope that it might mean the security of the entire nation."

The Atomic Energy Labor Relations panel concluded a hearing Tuesday on a wage dispute between the union's local 818 and J. M.

SAY CO-OP TAX ACTION KILLS NEW MEASURE

Washington, May 27 (AP)—Rep. Mason (R-Ill.) said Friday House tax-writers have killed chances for a new tax bill by "inconsistencies" as the rejection of a plan to require cooperatives to pay normal business taxes.

The House Ways and Means committee late Thursday rejected proposals to make certain non-exempt income of the co-ops subject to regular corporation tax rates.

Charge Favoritism
Mason, a committee member, called that action an indication of "political favoritism for co-ops," and said it was just one more sign that "there will be no tax bill this year."

That would sound the death knell for committee-approved cuts in excise taxes totalling $1,000,000,000. The House group is trying to slash excises and raise additional revenue all in one bill.

While it refused to vote new co-op taxes, the committee did vote to pick-up an estimated $20,000,000 extra annually by tightening up on taxes due under present law from co-op stockholders and on the patronage dividends received by co-op patrons.

Claim "Inconsistencies"
Mason directed his "political favoritism" charge at the committee for its action in:

1. Rejecting a proposal to subject to the corporate income tax the unallocated reserves of exempt co-ops.
2. Turning down another proposal to tax the unrelated business income of co-ops. An "unrelated business" was cited by a committee spokesman as such a situation as where a farmers' co-op operates a 10-cent store.

Mason said this committee action "fills the new tax bill with inconsistencies."

The committee refused to tax the reserves of co-ops, he said, after already voting to tax such reserves of mutual savings banks and building and loan companies.

U.S. Industrial Production Is Up

Washington, May 27 (AP)—The production of America's mines and factories this month may rival the records set in the postwar boom year of 1948.

Reporting this last night, the Federal Reserve Board said industrial output had hit a 13-month high in April and was continuing the upswing this month.

April output was indexed by the board at 189 per cent of (89 per cent above) the 1935-39 average against 187 in March and 179 in April, 1949, when an economic downturn was underway.

This month, the board said, "apparently" will produce another two point rise to 191—closing in on the historic top of 195 registered in October and November, 1948, at the crest of the postwar boom.

Along with the upsurge in production the board noted price advances since mid-April in many industrial materials, farm products and corporation common stocks.

TO HOLD STATE EXAMS

Harrisburg, May 27 (AP)—The State Civil Service commission will hold examinations July 8 for 90 jobs as claim settlement agents in the Public Assistant department at salaries ranging from $2,496 to $4,663 a year.

Maxon Construction Co., principal contractor on the $27,000,000 project involved.

The union, reportedly asking a wage hike from 95 cents an hour to $1.25, and the company were pledged to abide by the decision of the presidentially appointed panel. Workers ended a seven-day strike April 21 when the body agreed to take the case.

COMMIES LOSE UNION EFFORT TO HALT ARMS

By SIGRID ARNE
(AP Foreign Affairs Analyst)
(For Dewitt MacKenzie)

The Communists seem to have lost another skirmish in the cold war in Europe.

They set out the first of the year to stop shipments of American arms to Europe. They banked on European labor unions to do the job. Nothing but the Communist-dominated labor fringe would play ball. Europe is getting the weapons on schedule.

The U.S. Labor Department tells the story in the March issue of "Labor Abroad."

Most of the trouble occurred in France and Italy.

In both countries Communist-led unions started with a "peace offensive," telling workers that the way to insure peace was to refuse to handle American arms.

When that argument failed in France, the Communists began a flood of short strikes for higher pay, conspicuously among workers needed to shore up French defenses.

Tired of Sabotage
In both countries enough union people have grown so tired of the sly sabotage of Communist leaders that new anti-Communist unions have been formed.

These new unions still want better wages, but they also take into account the security of their nations.

In France the battle is between the Communist-led CGT (General Confederation of Labor) and two free unions, FO (Workers Force) and CFTC (French Confederation of Christian Workers).

In Italy the battle lies between the Communist-led CGIL (Italian General Confederation of Labor) and the anti-Communist LCGIL (Free Italian General Confederation of Workers) and FIL (Italian Federation of Labor).

In both countries the leaders of these new unions must have done a noble job of quick education on international issues. They work among people who live a great deal less comfortably than Americans in comparable jobs.

Strikes Ineffective
The strikes in France were so ineffective that it was apparent the Communists had lost much strength since the strikes of late 1947.

The French Assembly passed the anti-sabotage bill, but only after troops had bodily ejected Communist members who had started swinging fists on the assembly floor.

In Italy the Communists had some few successes in the northern ports, but they were stopped in such big southern ports as Naples and Bari.

Recent reports say arms were unloaded in Norway, Denmark and the Netherlands "without incident."

For Americans it means this: The Communists in western Europe have overplayed their hand, at least for a time. And U.S. foreign policy has helped where it is most important—among the workers of Europe, who seem to have decided that freedom is at least as important as a pay-check.

Littlestown

Littlestown—Commander Garlan Gillespie was in charge of the semi-monthly meeting of the Ocker-Snyder Post No. 321, American Legion, Thursday evening at the post home, East King street, Burnell Keagy and Roscoe Bowers were received into membership. The post made a donation to the Littlestown unit of the Warner hospital auxiliary. They also decided to sponsor the sending of a boy to the Keystone Boys' club for one week during the summer. This boy will be selected by the Boy Scout organization. A cash gift was sent by the post to Ralph Straley, who is in the Veterans' hospital, Lebanon.

Nominations for the various offices during the coming year were made on Thursday evening. The nominations will remain open until the next meeting on June 8. Elections will be held, June 28.

Commander Gillespie was present at a special assembly held Friday afternoon in the Littlestown Junior-Senior high school, when the prizes, which were won by Littlestown boys in the recent "Americanism" contest sponsored by the Legion posts of Adams county, were awarded. Mr. Gillespie made the presentations. The first county prize of $20 was presented to Richard Wolfe, and the fourth county prize of $5 was presented to Earl Humbert.

Miss Louise Staub, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Stanley M. Staub, West King street, who completed her third year at Mansfield State Teachers' college, returned home on Thursday for the summer vacation. The monthly meeting of the Starr Bible class of St. Paul's Lutheran

BAPTISTS PASS RESOLUTIONS

Boston, May 27 (AP)—Northern Baptists denounced "campaigns of character assassination" as they closed their mid-century convention yesterday. The convention said in a resolution that the investigation of certain State Department employees had heightened "Communist hysteria."

The delegates also adopted a resolution objecting to the Roman Catholic Church's rules on mixed marriages. The resolution said that the Catholic directive implied non-Catholic marriages "lack the authenticity furnished by Roman Catholic ceremonies and were of a less religious nature."

It also urged that "our young people contemplating inter-faith marriages be instructed by their pastors regarding their civil and religious rights under our Baptist standards of religious liberty."

The convention commended President Truman for "closing" the U. S. semi-official mission to the Vatican. The delegates urged the television industry to "clean up" crime programs viewed by children.

The prohibition of interstate traffic in "information and equipment used in gambling" was demanded in another resolution.

REVOKE LICENSE

Harrisburg, May 27 (AP)—The license of the Belle Vista sanatorium, near Philadelphia has been revoked by the State Welfare department. The sanatorium was the scene of the disastrous fire last March which took the lives of 10 patients. In a letter to Roland Randall, sanatorium owner, made public yesterday, Welfare Secretary William C. Brown ordered Randall not to admit "any additional patients to the sanatorium as of this date."

Washington, May 27 (AP)—"The army mule is a marvelous animal," said the army's chief of staff, "but I've never seen him do anything that a jeep or bulldozer can't do better." Gen. J. Lawton Collins, testifying before the Senate Armed Services committee yesterday, said the army is keeping its veterinary corps for the job of inspecting meats. But the mules are finished—victims, he said sadly, of the machine age.
